PER CURIAM:

Kathryn Hollis and her two sons received injuries from a fireworks explosion. The underlying state court action alleges that the fireworks company, its president, and another employee committed 19 breaches of duty that resulted in M.H.'s injuries. The issue in this declaratory judgment action is whether the underlying complaint alleges a single occurrence or 19 occurrences under the fireworks company's applicable insurance policy with Lexington Insurance Company. The policy covers up to $1 million per occurrence and $2 million in the aggregate.

In the present declaratory judgment action, the district court, ruling on cross-motions for summary judgment, found that the underlying complaint alleged one occurrence. We agree and thus affirm.

We review a district court's resolution of cross-motions for summary judgment de novo. Rossignol v. Voorhaar, 316 F.3d 516, 523 (4th Cir. 2003). A district court may only award summary judgment when no genuine dispute of material fact remains and the record shows that the moving party is entitled to judgment as a matter of law. Fed. R. Civ. P. 56(a).

Here, the district court resolved the cross-motions in favor of the insurer, Lexington.* The dispute is subject to Pennsylvania law.

In the liability insurance context, Pennsylvania law applies a cause approach to defining occurrences. Donegal Mut. Ins. Co. v. Baumhammers, 938 A.2d 286, 293 (Pa. 2007). Under the cause approach, Pennsylvania courts find a single occurrence if there "was but one proximate, uninterrupted, and continuing cause which resulted in all of the injuries and damage." D'Auria v. Zurich Ins. Co., 507 A.2d 857, 860 (Pa. Super. Ct. 1986); see also Baumhammers, 938 A.2d at 294-95.

Here, regardless of the number of alleged negligent acts or victims, the injuries have a single proximate cause – the misfired firework that exploded near Kathryn and her sons. See Baumhammers, 938 A.2d at 296. Because the injuries only have one cause, only one occurrence took place.

Accordingly, we affirm the district court's order resolving the cross-motions for summary judgment in Lexington's favor. We dispense with oral argument because the facts and legal
